

TALK TO YOUR ANGELS

Dear Friend,

Many people are aware that there are angels. But did you know that there are ten different types of angels? Each phylum performs different duties and you'll want to be sure to call upon the different type of phylum depending on your exact need. The ten phyla of angels all exist to help you. I do suggest that you call upon the specific phylum that is in charge of certain functions. If you are in need to healing, you can call upon the Archangels. These types of angels will best assist you.

Angels are the first phylum. Angels radiate with the love and glory of the Holy Spirit. They appear with shining white light surrounding them.

Their totem is the seagull and their element is the sun. The stone for Angels is the pearl. You can always tell Angels by their wings, which are white with silver tips. Angels are here to be our protectors. Their function is to help us with our fears and phobias.

Archangels are the second phylum of angels. They do not have individual names, my Spirit Guide Francine likes to suggest that we call all of them "Michael." Archangels carry the scepter of healing. This scepter is full of water from the pond near the Hall of Wisdom. An Archangel will touch someone gently on the heart chakra and send them healing.

The totem for Archangels is the wolf and their element is the rain. The stone for these magnificent angels is aquamarine. Archangels have white wings with blue tips. These angels are messengers and are known for giving people hope.

The Cherubim and the Seraphim are levels three and four respectively of the angel phylum chart. The animal totem for both is the canary, known for its beautiful singing. The main difference between the two is that the Cherubim have beautiful singing voices and the Seraphim have a vibrational and tonal ability. The Cherubim and the Seraphim are known as the most joyous phylum.

Both types of angels have white wings with rose-colored tips. The Cherubim are slightly larger than the Seraphim. The Cherubim are best known for their phenomenal singing. The Seraphim have a vibrational and tonal ability. Both compliment each other so well to create beautiful music that is simply indescribable.

With this “indescribable” music, you may just wonder: what exactly is it like? My Spirit Guide Francine has said that it touches her deep down into the very cells of her being. The Cherubim and Seraphim know sounds and tones that no human being has ever heard. These have vibrations and emit a force that can be felt in your body and soul.

The Powers are the fifth phylum of angel and their primary function is healing. They use their wings to create a healing cocoon around the person who is in need of healing. While the Archangels use the scepter of healing, the Powers simply use their own energy to heal. If you call upon the Powers, they can easily shelter you with their wings – but it is the healing electrical force that comes from them that enters our bodies and heals us cell by cell.

The Powers are large angels, with some of them being quite enormous. Their totem is the falcon, known for being swift and having perseverance. Their element is the moon, which represents the motherly or female aspect. The Powers’ stone is the emerald, which is the healing color of green. The Powers’ wing tips are a greenish white and they have electric blue flames that rise from them.

The Carrions are the sixth phylum of angels. Their purpose is to carry away the dark entities when they die. The Carrions only have one mission: to stand back until a dark entity is ready to pass into death. Carrions act as protection for our world and also The Other Side. Because of Carrions, dead dark entities don’t exist on earth. Their totem is the raven. Their element is the wind; this represents the type of task they carry out. Their stone is the opal.

The Virtues are the seventh phylum of angels. The Virtues help us with our charts, and they help us make changes to our charts when needed. Virtues also help us with our charts and with life on The Other Side before we come to earth.

The Virtues are tremendous angels that help to guide us even before we begin our lives. These angels are the seventh phyla. The Virtues are represented by the dove. Many of us know that the dove is a symbol for peace, love and the Holy Spirit. Their stone is silver. Their wings have pale blue tips with silvery-blue luminescence. Their element is water, which represents flexibility and mutability.

The Dominions are the eighth phylum of angels. They watch over our good deeds and actions and record them permanently in the Akashic record. I consider the Dominions to be some of the busiest angels. Guides by informing them which angels would be of the most assistance to us. Dominions typically do not act on our earth plane, but do their work where they are on our behalf.

Their totem is the cougar, who is known for its strength and dignity. Their element is the earth, which represents both grounding and the lives that they record. Their stone is the bloodstone, which reminds us so much of the blood of life. Dominions have wings that are also white with tinted maroon.

There are times our Spirit Guides will simply go to the Dominions instead of The Council for our assistance. My Spirit Guide Francine has admitted that she has gone to the Dominions with not just minor concerns, but at times some fairly major ones as well. Keep in mind that our charts have so much detail and there are times that our Spirit Guides simply cannot get through all of the detail. They can get an instant answer.

The Thrones and the Principalities are considered the “most high” of all of the angels. They are Mother and Father God’s armies. There are no other angels that are higher than them. The Thrones and Principalities are sent to us when we are in danger of any type. The Thrones are Azna’s (Mother God) Army and the Principalities are Om’s (Father God) Army.

I have called upon these angels to protect my loved ones and others who might be in a troublesome situation. Please don’t be intimidated that they are the “highest” angels: they still want to protect and love you just like any of the other angels do.

The Thrones are considered Azna’s, otherwise known as Mother God. They are her army. The Thrones are a bit more active angels. The Principalities are considered to be more “guardians at the gate” who are quite stately.

The Principalities are Om’s, known as Father God’s army. They are the tenth phyla of angels. In the Bible, we learn that the Principalities are in charge of nations and cities. They are also considered the protectors of religion and spirituality. They are also known to take people to Home at times. These angels have tremendous grace and power, as these are the highest angel phyla in existence.

Each one of these angels wants to be of assistance to you. Call upon these angels anytime you need assistance or help. God’s angels are always ready to help you!

Love,

Sylvia
